Partnership Approvals: Who Gets the Say

Every collaboration enters through Marketing. The deal's tier decides who approves it. The Marketing lead has the final say on anything with money, joint branding or long-term commitment.

Decision rights

Decision	Partner owner (Marketing)	Events / Social lead	Marketing lead	Legal / Finance	Partner
Log the request and run the fit check	D	C	I	–	–
Assign the tier	D	–	I	–	–
Approve a Tier 1 small collab	D	C	I	–	–
Approve a Tier 2 standard partnership	R	C	D	–	C
Approve a Tier 3 strategic partnership	R	C	D	S	C
Agreement terms, fees and usage rights	R	C	D	C	C
Delivery details: dates, run-of-show, post plan	C	D	I	–	C
Publish co-branded assets and posts	C	R	D	–	S
Renew, change or end the partnership	R	C	D	C	I

D Decides: exactly one per row S Must sign off: can block R Recommends C Consulted before I Informed after – no role

Approval tiers

Tier 1 · Small collab

No money, no joint branding, one campaign or less. Example: a one-off creator post.

PARTNER OWNER DECIDES · 2 WORKING DAYS

Tier 2 · Standard partnership

Paid within the campaign budget, or joint branding. Example: an event sponsor.

MARKETING LEAD DECIDES · 5 WORKING DAYS

Tier 3 · Strategic partnership

Over budget, exclusivity, several campaigns, or shared customer data.

MARKETING LEAD, AFTER LEGAL + FINANCE · 10 DAYS

Tie-breaks

Unsure of the tier? Go one tier up. If people disagree, the Marketing lead decides and that call is final. A sub-lead can say "we can't deliver" but can't approve a deal.